

Relationships

The dynamics between two Designs

Every relationship creates its own dynamic. A Human Design relationship analysis explores how two Bodygraphs interact, where things flow naturally, and where differences, expectations or conditioning may arise.

Relationship dynamics

We explore how the two Designs meet, the connections between centers and channels, and the patterns that emerge through interaction.

Connections and differences

We identify areas of complementarity, attraction and potential friction, without treating one configuration as better than another.

Communication and decisions

We look at each person's Strategy and Authority, and how to respect different rhythms and decision-making processes.

Conditioning and individuality

We recognize mutual influences and recurring patterns, making room for a more conscious relationship with fewer expectations.

From understanding to experience

This analysis does not prescribe how a relationship should work. It offers a way to observe the mechanics between two people and experiment with new ways of relating while respecting each person's individuality.
